

Anna Bullus Biography

Anna Bullus was born in London, England in 1984. Anna left Bedales School in 2003 to go to Camberwell College of Art (2004 – 2005) to do a foundation course where she specialised in 3D Design and left with a distinction. Anna then went on to the University of Brighton where she graduated in Three Dimensional Design with a first class honours (2005 – 2007).

After leaving University Anna gained experience as a product Designer with Hulger where she was given the task of redesigning the energy saving light bulb (www.annabullus.com - The Plumen Project) and Case Furniture as a junior product developer and press liaison in London. Anna left Case Furniture in June 2008 to set up her own company GUMDROP Ltd to tackle the global problem of gum litter.

Anna has showcased her designs, Cologne, Singapore, Shanghai, Milan and London. For a complete list of exhibitions please go to:

Profile

Completely passionate about design. Materials and processes should be understood thoroughly in order to push properties to achieve innovation without loss of quality. Problems are only there to be overcome by simple, clever and comfortable design that recognises daily social and environmental trends and needs – striving every time to be more creative than the last design.
